The Church's GPS

One of the features that I use most often on my Smartphone is the GPS.

When I click the GoogleMaps application on my Smartphone, satellites that are flying far overhead can connect with my cellphone and provide my current location. I can choose my destination by typing an address onto the screen, or I can simply type the name of a distant city.

And then, through the "magic" of technology, GoogleMaps plots my journey; provides an approximate arrival time; directs me around traffic jams; and even provides a picture of my destination, so that I don't knock on the door of the wrong house.

Many pastors and congregational leaders are searching for the church's path forward in quickly changing times. We realize that our society is moving through a time of dramatic change and transition.

From the Pastor's Desk

We can sense that dramatic shifts are occurring in people's lives as we hear more and more about the "Nones" and the "Dones." And we wish we could find the magic pill. We wish that we could somehow re-create an idealized past; but, deep inside, we all know that that's not going to work. And so, we need to look forward. And, we also need to listen to God's voice because the Church has been built upon the life-giving message of Christ crucified and risen for 2,000 years, and because the Risen Christ has promised to sustain the Church and lead it into the future.

So, what does our life of worship and prayer have to do with a GPS?

- First, a GPS reminds us that we can never travel from "where we are right now" to "where we need to be" until we know "where we are right now." We begin worship services at Christ's Lutheran Church, each week, by joining in a time of confession and forgiveness because we need to remember "where we are right now." Times of confession call us to look deep inside; and, sometimes, call us to look at parts of our lives that we don't like to see. Times of open confession call us to gaze into a mirror, and to see ourselves both honestly and authentically. And that's important because some of the things that we see in the mirror can stand in the way when we want to serve God. And the pronouncement of God's forgiveness frees us and liberates us, so that we can move in a new direction. Worship and prayer can open our eyes to "where we are right now" – and that's where every journey begins.
- Second, a GPS reminds us that we can never travel from "where we are right now" to "where we need to be" until we know "where we need to be." And worship and prayer can help us to see that, too. God opens our eyes and speaks to our hearts in worship and prayer – helping us to see the “gap” between where things are right now and where God wants them to be. As we “dream and dreams of God” in our worship and prayer, God gives us visions of the future that God wants to create for our lives and our ministry. God points us toward “where we need to be.” We might think that we can simply decide “where we need to be” by sitting at a table and by creating long-term strategies without God’s help. But, no matter how creative our strategies become, they’ll never lead us to “where we need to be” until we gather around God’s Word, spend time in worship and prayer, and ask God to lead us and help us to do what He wants us to do.

- Third, a GPS reminds us that, as we’re traveling from “where we are right now” to “where we need to be,” there are many different paths – and some of them may be far better than others. The book of Acts contains a wonderful story where the Holy Spirit opens and closes doors as St. Paul was traveling (Acts 16:6-10). We need to understand that God does the same thing today. When we spend time in worship and prayer, God works. God inspires. God leads. God opens door that we can’t open by ourselves with His mighty hands. And God chooses the best route forward. When we know “where we are right now” and “where we need to be,” we must remain in worship and in prayer – trusting that God will open doors and even close doors that will lead us down paths filled with unnecessary obstacles.
- Lastly, a GPS reminds us that, as we’re traveling from “where we are right now” to “where we need to be,” God will provide pictures of our destination. The Bible tells us: “Where there is no vision the people perish” (Proverbs 29:18). As we worship and pray, God paints a picture for us. Can we see Christ’s Lutheran Church as a vibrant congregation that's both multi-generational and multi-cultural? Can we picture Christ's Lutheran Church as a place where people use the first five minutes after each worship services to engage and to speak with visitors, instead of just flying toward the doors? Can we picture Christ's Lutheran Church as a place that devotes itself to listening to people and to building entire ministries around what God has told us to do to meet the needs of people who are living just beyond the walls of our building? Can we picture Christ's Lutheran Church as a place that continues to lift-up the fact that ALL of God's people are created to be ministers – and that one of the most important things that we can do as a church is to help people to fulfill their own ministry by equipping and empowering them by providing the tools and training and connections that they need to find?

When I click the GoogleMaps application on my Smartphone, satellites that are flying far overhead can connect with my cellphone and provide my current location. I can choose my destination by typing an address onto the screen, or I can simply type the name of a distant city. And then, through the "magic" of technology, GoogleMaps plots my journey; provides an approximate arrival time; directs me around traffic jams; and even provides a picture of my destination, so that I don't knock on the door of the wrong house.

Can we look at our life of worship and prayer
as something that does the same thing?

What's Your Story?

Everyone has a story. As members of Christ's Lutheran Church, each one of us has a unique story to tell of how our faith led us to be part of this ministry. Many of our members practice their faith right here by serving on council, teaching Sunday school, assisting in worship, or working behind the scenes on Altar Guild or property maintenance. Others put their faith in action by volunteering at food banks, Light of Life, and mission trips, and many other worthwhile causes. What part of our ministry touched you the most? How has your faith encouraged you to choose your particular area of ministry? We would like to hear your story. If you are moved to share your story with others please contact a member of the Stewardship Team.
